ANGELS WIN DREARY GAME

Misplaced Players Lose For Salt Lake.

RECRUITS ARE ON THE WAY

NEW LINE-UP PROMISED FOR TODAY.

Listen, fanatics, and you shall hear. The tale of that game so long and dreary, through many an error, many a drive, The Angels skinned us, eighteen to five.

It is to regret, To regret that it should be thus. To mourn for the things that were not; to mourn for the things that were.

Time, however, will assuage our grief. We shall win a game presently—mayhap today—and then we shall feel better. Let us not be too much cast down. Let us think of the first game of the series, when it was ours to laugh. Faint heart, cheer up! It might have been worse. The entire fruit crop of the state, for instance, might have been ruined, and that would mean no gooseberry pie next Christmas. We are still alive and most of us are in fair physical condition—shattered though we may be mentally. Let us look at the bright side of things. It will not always be dark. After the cold winter comes the bright sunshine of spring, the pretty flowers, the clover alfalfa, the little birds, the lambskins popping on the green, the low-cut shoes, the June bride, etc., and then we forget the dark days that have gone before.

Well, let us have a look at it. Let us first take up our line-up yesterday, so fearfully and wonderfully made. Two outfielders playing infield, two pitchers playing outfield, a change catcher behind the plate, the second baseman at short, the right fielder in the middle, only the pitchers and the first baseman playing where they belong.

For us: Boots, wild throws, lost flies and many others, too numerous to mention. Against us: Nine men playing where they all belonged, full of vigor, deftly like champions, hitting like the devil, and all.

Result: Eighteen to five in favor of Los Angeles.

There is no concealing the fact that we had it put on us pretty hard. If we tried to disguise this our enemies would laugh at us. Eighteen to five in the National league this would be considered a one-sided contest, and naturally we are a trifle to the gloomy, but we shall recover again soon.

To try to fix the responsibility would be calling names—nine or ten times, in all likelihood. Personalities are pleasant, and it is not good to dwell on disagreeable things. It leads ultimately to dyspepsia and all its dreadful aches.

Let us be as nice as we can about it. Let us take a snap judgment. Give the management a chance. It is quite a proposition to shift a tallent team around in the first division class with it. Good players are hard to get so late in the season, and we must do the best we can with what we have, experimenting with the men we can get hold of, keeping the ones that do the best work, letting go the ones who do the worst.

The team even change. The men are not yet two weeks with us, and they are going against the leaders; a team thoroughly trained, coherent in every respect, under splendid discipline, all playing their proper positions and with the prestige of a long string of victories behind them.

We were in the game demoralized. We played a pitcher who has been pitched in pretty nearly every game played since he came here to put him in the outfield and bring in an outfielder who had been working like a beaver in his own position. On the bench we had a substitute with a crippled hand, who could not handle a ball at all. On the road we had a bunch of reinforcements who were what the time out of reach. Taking all these things into consideration it is easier to understand the thing.

There is another phase of the thing which we cannot go so easily. Fame Rumor, with some corroboration from Dr. Eyewitness, says some of our players have been drinking parties. It is said they are cursed by being possessed of beautiful voices, tender, sweet and resonant, which make them in great demand by serenading parties. It is not well. Baseball and social diversion do not mix. The vocalization should be cut out during the baseball season and the couch should receive the herculean frame or midnight each day. No names, you understand, but the late hours should be eliminated. A trifle more espionage by those in authority would do no harm. Nothing disagreeable is intended—no knock. No mantle of charity is outstretched, but don't—please, don't—make us mad. We want to like the team—we insist on liking the team—we want to help the team win, but we want the team to do its share. We want the best in the show, as it should happen not to be the best in the world, we won't kick, but we want the best, M. J. Jensen says that he is a good man to get hold of.

and early to rise. That will be all on this topic.

There was an incident yesterday that was unpleasant. Nothing so awfully bad, but it might as well be stopped. Hanley was playing third, and not playing it like a man who belonged there. He is an outfielder and a top-notch in his position—none better in sight. He made a few mizzles and a man in the grand stand, following one of the plays, ventured to suggest that Hanley bore a marked resemblance to a lobster. Hanley heard it and marked the man. When the side came in he bawled the man out, suggesting that the man take a whirl at playing the third bag, come out and have a roll in the dust with him, and much more of the same tenor. Nothing profane was uttered, but Hanley succeeded in causing much distress to some of the ladies present by his belligerent attitude before Colgan got over to stop him. When he next came in Hanley resumed his campaign against the grand stand, singling out another man and exchanging compliments with him. It is bad business. There will always be a few knucklers at every game—men who will bowl out players—but men who have played so much baseball as take into consideration the many ad-them. It does no good. A ball player is a public character and must receive criticism—harsh and unwarranted at times—without reply. It is the only thing to do, even though it is hard to endure. Above all, a ball player should not lose his temper. It makes things unpleasant and hurts the man's play. The players want to understand the majority of the fans of the town are their friends and want to support them all the time. A little charity both ways will help mightily.

The first games of the Los Angeles series will be played this afternoon. There will be two games for one admission, and the first game will begin at 2 o'clock. Our team will probably be strengthened by the arrival of our sorely-needed infielders and pitchers, and we ought to get one of the games. If we win both we shall be breaking even on the series, so that things are not so hopeless after all. People should be interested in the series, and the verse conditions against which the team is struggling before passing judgment. It was bad yesterday—mighty bad—but not fatal. There will be lots of opportunities to even up before the creek freezes over.

FACTS FOR THE FANS.

Salt Lake and Los Angeles will play a double-header at Walker's this afternoon for the Salt Lake team, and the first game will commence promptly at 2 p. m.

Helman and Stoppel, two new players for the Salt Lake team, arrived from Spokane yesterday. They are both pitchers.

Manager Kelly announced last evening that he had signed Egan, former shortstop for the Salt Lake team, and that he would take him along with the angels for the rest of the season. Kelly says that he is a coming youngster, and that he is a good man to get hold of.

be gone a couple of days. He says he may have a couple of new players to spring on the public when he returns.

Fred Clark caught on with the Los Angeles team yesterday. Manager Kelly wired Helena asking how much they wanted for Clark's release, and decided to pay it at once to secure a good man as Clark. In all probability Clark will be found on first for Los Angeles in the game today.

Nephew Thomas returned from Mt. Pleasant yesterday, but will return tomorrow. Thomas has caught on down that town and has been given a position to go down there and pitch ball for the rest of the season. They think he is a wonder in the pitching line, and in all probability he will have little trouble holding his own with the amateur teams around those parts.

A wire was received from W. V. Garrett last evening from Spokane stating that Garrett had left for Salt Lake and would bring along with him a pitcher by the name of Rush, and Weed, a third baseman. He is expected to be here in time for the series of games between San Francisco and Salt Lake next week.

Fisher, Salt Lake's left stop, has left the city and did not inform the management of the team where he was going. Reynolds, however, has been asked to have Fisher suspended until further notice. Reynolds also said he would have Daisel suspended for not coming on to Salt Lake.

The Highland Boy Smelter team defeated the Port Douglas team yesterday on the Highland Boy grounds by a score of 12 to 0. The batteries were: Port Douglas, Hunter and Deem; Highland Boy, Ames and Marks.

SHOWED HER SUPERIORITY

Reliance Simply Ran Away From the Other Boats.

LED FROM START TO FINISH

COLUMBIA WAS RATHER A POOR THIRD.

New London, Conn., July 18.—There was no room for doubt in the victory of the Reliance today in the second run of the New York Yacht club cruise of thirty-nine miles from New Haven to this port. She led from the start and finished more than a mile ahead of the Constitution, nearly a mile ahead of the Columbia, and twenty-nine miles ahead of the other boats. The Reliance made the race in twenty-four minutes and twenty-four seconds. The Constitution made the race in twenty-five minutes and twenty-four seconds. The Columbia made the race in twenty-six minutes and twenty-four seconds.

Starting in a light, favorable breeze, the Reliance, within fifteen minutes, was three-quarters of a mile ahead of the other two boats, but when the wind increased, as it did in the hour after the start, the new boat did not gain so rapidly. In fact, for twenty miles of the run she was a good twelve minutes behind the windward of the beam, the Constitution held to the Reliance in fine shape. Five miles from the finish, however, the new boat pulled away very rapidly, while the Columbia steadily dropped behind the other two after half of the course had been covered.

In Record Time.
The Reliance covered the distance of thirty-nine miles in twenty-eight minutes and twenty-four seconds, a speed of eleven and three-quarter knots an hour, which was the fastest time ever made on this run of the cruise. The small boats were sent off first, the classes gradually increasing in size, until at the end of the race the Reliance was the only boat left.

Colorado Springs, July 18.—Colorado Springs and Milwaukee broke even in the eighth on a single and three base hits. Attendance, 1,200. Score: R. H. E. Colorado Springs, 9; Milwaukee, 8.

San Francisco, July 18.—San Francisco won in the eighth on a single and three base hits. Attendance, 1,200. Score: R. H. E. San Francisco, 9; Milwaukee, 8.
